~Choosing an educational environment for your child's future~

Preparation for School Entrance

In one year, your child will enter school. Along with expectations, there may be anxiety and worry. When your child enters elementary school, there will be more situations where the teacher will give instructions to the whole class and require them to act accordingly compared to preschool or kindergarten. In addition, students will have to sit in a chair for 45 minutes in class.

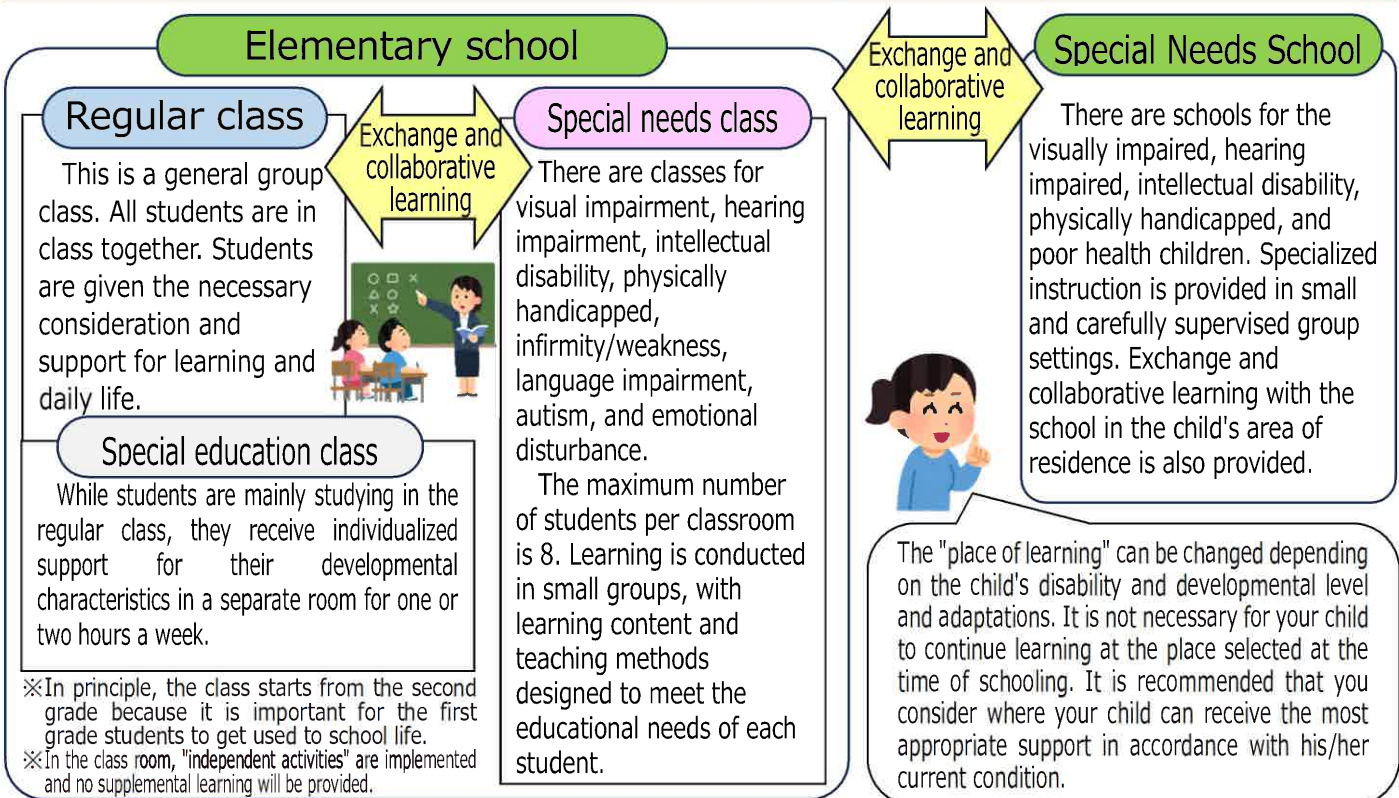

If you are concerned about your child in a group or attending classes, we recommend that you consider a "place of learning" that is suited to your child's characteristics. Let's learn about the features of each "place of learning" and find the best educational environment for your child.

For example, do you have the following concerns...?

Learning	Behavior	Social skills

What kind of "places of learning" are available?
